COMPROMISE MEASURE FOR FARMERS' RELIEF

PRES. COOLIDGE ASKS McNARY TO FRAME BILL

TO MEET PRESIDENT'S FARM RELIEF PRINCIPLES AS LAID DOWN IN HIS VETO

DEBENTURE PLAN DOES NOT MEET FAVOR WITH CHIEF EXECUTIVE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Nov. 12.—President Coolidge has designated Chairman McNary of the senate agriculture committee, co-author of the McNary-Haugen bill, to work upon a compromise measure meeting Mr. Coolidge's farm relief principles as laid down in his veto last year.

Meantime, Mr. Coolidge is not sympathetically considering the debenture plan as currently reported among members of the farm bloc. He is leaving everything to McNary, and the latter after a conference with the president today, branded the debenture plan as a direct sub-

McNary said the debenture plan was inferior to the equalization fee provided in the original McNary-Haugen bill.

"I believe there is enough intelligence in congress and among farm leaders and in the administration to work out the farm relief problem, but I do not believe the debenture plan offers the solution," McNary said.

This measure, if it can be framed, would be proposed as a substitute for the old price stabilization bill.

Meantime Mr. Coolidge is not sympathetically considering the debenture plan as currently reported among members of the farm bloc. In fact he is leaving everything to McNary. The senator's preliminary scheme, however, would take the original theory of tariff equalization as a broad basis—and this was the design of the debenture project.

That is the situation upon farm relief legislation as outlined to the United Press by authorities at the capitol and White House. Reports were spread by officials that the McNary-Haugen bill was to be scrapped and that the debenture plan agreed upon. These are inaccurate, according to best information.

The compromise is being seriously sought by McNary but with as yet no assurance that it will be successful. Mr. Coolidge has not capitulated from his stand against influencing the law of supply and demand. He has informed the farm bloc leaders he will be willing to concede many points if his general principles are complied with. He realizes some concessions must be made and he will make his share, he said privately. But he cannot waive his general principles, he has made plain.

The farm bloc is a little bewildered by the turn of events. Many of its members are opposed to the debenture system of giving exporters of farm products credit which would be used to pay tariff duties on imports. Others still staunchly favor the McNary-Haugen bill.

BOLSHEVICS TO END BIGAMY AND POLYGAMY

Baku, Transcaucasia, Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—Bolshevik authorities have started a campaign to end bigamy and polygamy among the Moslem inhabitants of the Soviet Union.

The Dagestan government has issued a stern decree intended to stop at once polygamous marriages in the wild Moslem tribes living in mountains and valleys along the Caspian sea.

True to its policy of dealing leniently with Mohammedans and sternly with all priests, of whatever religion, the Soviet authorities announce they will not prosecute men who acquire more than one wife, but will punish the priest who officiates at a bigamous or polygamous ceremony.

The government action was taken after a propaganda campaign among Moslem wives had failed. Agents had explained to extra wives that they were making slaves of themselves.

STRIKING MINERS EXPECTED TO GO BACK TO WORK

PROTECTION IN COLORADO COAL FIELDS AFFORDED BY 200 STEEL WORKERS

LATTER HAD LOST JOBS WHEN COAL SUPPLY CEASED. NOW SEEK GUARD DUTY

Denver, Colo., Nov. 12.—Under the protection of 200 workers from the steel mills at Pueblo, more striking miners were expected to return to their picks and shovels today in the southern Colorado coal fields.

The steel workers, thrown out of work because of a coal shortage, left for the strike zone late yesterday to offer themselves as guards for working miners.

Quiet prevailed through the coal fields over Armistice Day. Striking miners marched behind flags in Armistice Day parades and many miners who had resumed work stayed away from the mines to observe the holiday.

Picketing virtually had ceased but officers received complaints that working miners were being intimidated at their homes. Three men were arrested at Walsenburg by state officers yesterday on charges of threatening miners.

MOB HANGS NEGRO SUSPECT

DOES WORK FEW MILES FROM ARMISTICE DAY CEREMONIES AT COLUMBIA

Columbia, Tenn., Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—A few miles from the spot where Governor Henry H. Horton of Tennessee was conducting Armistice Day dedication of a monument to veterans of the Civil and World wars, a mob hanged Henry Choate, negro, 18, from a second story window of a courthouse here.

Choate was arrested earlier in the day of suspicion of attacking a 16-year old school girl, and was placed under guard in a house. A mob formed but was dispersed by sheriffs who insisted the man had not been identified and parents of the girl said she could not identify her assailant.

Later word flashed through the town that Choate had confessed the crime to Rev. J. F. Parsons, pastor of the First Methodist church. The mob re-formed, stormed the courthouse where the negro had been lodged, and hanged him from a pole run out of a second story window.

FARMER, EXILE FOR LIFE, LEAVES MISSISSIPPI

Ripley, Miss., Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—George Dees, farmer, was believed on his way out of Mississippi today, an exile for life, as a result of his choice to leave the state rather than spend seven years in prison.

Dees was tried for shooting Zack Massey, a few months ago. Previous to the trial he had killed Massey his small farm, as a token of regret. Massey was made an invalid for life by the wound.

Judge Thomas Pegram gave Dees the choice of leaving the state or spending seven years in prison. Dees chose the former.

WIND HAS VELOCITY OF 45 MILES AN HOUR. DOES SOME DAMAGE

PROPERTY DAMAGE IN CHICAGO SUBURBS. KANSAS CITY HAS SLEET AND SNOW

(By United Press)
Sweeping out of the northwest on a 45 mile an hour wind, a cold wave has sent the thermometer plunging downward throughout the midwest and southwest.

The wind caused the most trouble in the area adjacent to Chicago, when it encountered a warm pocket, and the resulting clash was responsible for considerable property damage in Chicago suburbs.

In Niles, Ill., three houses, one business structure, and several small shacks were wrecked. Roy Olson, and two members of his family were injured.

Niles Center also experienced considerable damage. Communication lines were temporarily paralyzed throughout the district.

At Kansas City the thermometer was expected to drop to the 20 degree mark. Colder weather than this was predicted for Oklahoma and Kansas.

Western Kansas reported sleet and snow and Dallas, Texas was expected to shiver in a 30 degree temperature.

At Chicago the thermometer was scheduled to descend to 15 degrees. Sioux City, Ia., saw a forty mile wind which drove snow particles so fast before it that visibility was marred.

Storm warnings were issued for all the Great Lakes.

It was reported that airplane service over most of the midwest had been discontinued during last night.

At Des Moines, Ia., the thermometer dropped 28 degrees, to 36, in seven hours.

The weather bureau at Springfield, Ill., forecasted a temperature of 20 degrees for that city today.

CHARGES WIFE WITH BEING A MURDERESS

JAMES STUART DALES, DEAN AT UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA, COMPLAINANT

SAYS SHE CONCEALED HER PAST WHEN THEY WERE MARRIED THREE YEARS AGO

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—James Stuart Dales, dean at the University of Nebraska and secretary of the board of regents, has filed suit for divorce from his wife on the ground that she is a murderess and has a prison record.

She concealed her past when they were married three years ago and Dean Dales fears for his safety, his petition states. Discovery that he was her fifth husband was another reason given for the divorce action.

His wife admits she divorced her first two husbands and killed her third but she insists the dean had been apprised of her past before they were married. For the slaying of her third husband Mrs. Dales received a one to 10-year sentence in the Nebraska penitentiary.

She also admits that following her release from prison she married again, but husband No. 4 was sent to prison for auto theft. Mrs. Dales said she refused an offer of $2,500 from her husband's attorney if she would allow the divorce without publicity.

Dean Dales is 76 years of age and his wife 47. Their marriage followed an elopement to Missouri three years ago.

WOMEN WILL CONTINUE AFFILIATIONS WITH COUNTY ORGANIZATION

REFUSE TO BE PART OF STATE UNTIL ADMINISTRATION CHANGES

St. Paul, Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—Dissatisfaction because of alleged "under politics and policies" in the present administration of the Minnesota Federated Women's clubs has resulted in the withdrawal from the state body of eleven clubs—two in Minneapolis and nine at Rochester, the latter with a total membership of 255.

The women declared they would continue their affiliations with the county organization, but would not become a part of the state body until there was a change of administration.

According to Rochester club spokeswomen, the greatest dissatisfaction arose over the conduct of the state convention held last month at Crookston.

The Minneapolis clubs, the Nineteenth Century and the Gleaners Study, would not comment on their resignations.

When the Beta sent out its first call for help the destroyers Ammen and Henly and the cutters Seminole and Gresham hastened to the scene. A dozen ships in the vicinity changed their courses to aid the tanker.

GREATEST CUT IS SOUGHT BY THE DEMOCRATS

SEEK $400,000,000 TO HALF BILLION DOLLARS CUT IN TAXES

DIRECTOR OF BUDGET TO PRESENT HIS FIGURES TO COMMITTEE

By THOMAS L. STOKES

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—The administration will make a final effort next week before the house ways and means committee to keep tax reduction within the $225,000,000 figure set by Secretary of Treasury Mellon, it was learned today. Some republicans favor a cut of $300,000,000, while democrats say a $400,000,000 or $500,000,000 cut should be made.

Before the committee begins actual writing of the measure, Director of Budget Lord will appear with his estimates for various expenditures which include, beside usual outlays, such extra funds as those necessary for flood control and deficiency needs.

Because of the unusual expenditures this session, the administration contends tax reduction must be held to the $225,000,000 figure if a deficit is to be avoided. Lord will present figures to drive home this argument of the administration.

The amount needed for flood control is still a nebulous figure. Because of this uncertainty, the administration will urge great care in limiting tax reduction, so that flood needs may be met.

The tax bill is in a peculiar situation this year. As usual, it will be brought up near the outset of the session, following passage by the house of a deficiency bill to meet pressing demands which held over because a general deficiency bill was lost in the filibuster last session. But in past years, the probable expenditures have been known, so that the tax cut could be figured closer than is possible this year. This indefiniteness will be emphasized by administration leaders.

Numbers of southern democrats are keenly interested in adequate funds for flood control, as it affects their sections, and they may be influenced by the administration argument against attempting too expensive a cut this year.

Speaker of the House Longworth hopes to get the deficiency bill, tax reduction and an alien property measure through the house before Christmas. Flood relief cannot be taken up until after the holidays because the army engineers' report, on which the bill will be based, will not be ready until Dec. 1, and considerable time will be necessary to draft a measure.

Formal investigation of charges that the national council of state legislatures, an outgrowth of the American Taxpayers' League, is conducting a well-financed lobby for repeal of the estate tax was indicated in a statement by Chairman Green of the ways and means committee that he would support a bill for such investigation.

TO REBUILD RADIO STATION WAMD

Minneapolis, Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—Plans to rebuild radio station WAMD, Minneapolis, were under way today almost before embers of the fire which late yesterday destroyed the structure housing the station's equipment, were cool. The loss was estimated at $34,000.

While owners conferred on plans for the new station, an unofficial probe to determine the cause of the fire was under way. The fire was discovered a short time after a radio engineer had left the building. He reported that everything was all right at the station when he departed.

During the time work is under way on the new station, WAMD's programs will be broadcast from station WRHM, the Rosedale hospital station here.

UNTIL ADMINISTRATION CHANGES

St. Paul, Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—Dissatisfaction because of alleged "under politics and policies" in the present administration of the Minnesota Federated Women's clubs has resulted in the withdrawal from the state body of eleven clubs—two in Minneapolis and nine at Rochester, the latter with a total membership of 255.

The women declared they would continue their affiliations with the county organization, but would not become a part of the state body until there was a change of administration.

According to Rochester club spokeswomen, the greatest dissatisfaction arose over the conduct of the state convention held last month at Crookston.

The Minneapolis clubs, the Nineteenth Century and the Gleaners Study, would not comment on their resignations.

N. Y. HARBOR

2 MEMBERS OF CREW MISSING,
THIRD IS SEVERELY BURNED

UNEXPLAINED EXPLOSION OCCURRED IN FOREPART OF SHIP

New York, Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—With two members of its crew reported missing and a third severely burned, the Tanker Beta was expected in New York harbor today following an unexplained explosion in the forward part of the ship yesterday. The injured man was burned while attempting to smother flames which followed the explosion.

A coast guard cutter was conveying the vessel into port, although last messages from the Beta to its agents indicated that it was moving along under its own power and that the fire had been extinguished.

When the Beta sent out its first call for help the destroyers Ammen and Henly and the cutters Seminole and Gresham hastened to the scene. A dozen ships in the vicinity changed their courses to aid the tanker.

The Beta is a vessel of 5,600 tons, operated by the Beta Steamship corporation. It is 400 feet long with a 53-foot beam. It was en route to Beaumont, Texas.

14 LIBERALS KILLED

SKIRMISHES WITH U. S. MARINES AT TELPANCA, MANAGUA

Managua, Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—Dispatches to Managua newspapers report that 14 liberals have been killed and wounded in a skirmish between U. S. marines and liberals at Telpaneca, and that another engagement has occurred between marines and liberals at Santarita, near the Honduran border.

The marines here have received ten new planes, including one amphibian bomber, capable of carrying a ton, in addition to several additional pilots.

The marines practically took charge of local elections held Sunday in many towns. The conservatives won 46 municipalities out of 63. Much optimism is expressed by the conservatives who expect General Chamorro to arrive this month from the United States.

GREATEST CUT IS SOUGHT BY THE DEMOCRATS

SEEK $400,000,000 TO HALF BILLION DOLLARS CUT IN TAXES

DIRECTOR OF BUDGET TO PRESENT HIS FIGURES TO COMMITTEE

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—The administration will make a final effort next week before the house ways and means committee to keep tax reduction within the $225,000,000 figure set by Secretary of Treasury Mellon, it was learned today. Some republicans favor a cut of $300,000,000, while democrats say a $400,000,000 or $500,000,000 cut should be made.

Before the committee begins actual writing of the measure, Director of Budget Lord will appear with his estimates for various expenditures which include, beside usual outlays, such extra funds as those necessary for flood control and deficiency needs.

Because of the unusual expenditures this session, the administration contends tax reduction must be held to the $225,000,000 figure if a deficit is to be avoided. Lord will present figures to drive home this argument of the administration.

The amount needed for flood control is still a nebulous figure. Because of this uncertainty, the administration will urge great care in limiting tax reduction, so that flood needs may be met.

The tax bill is in a peculiar situation this year. As usual, it will be brought up near the outset of the session, following passage by the house of a deficiency bill to meet pressing demands which held over because a general deficiency bill was lost in the filibuster last session. But in past years, the probable expenditures have been known, so that the tax cut could be figured closer than is possible this year. This indefiniteness will be emphasized by administration leaders.

Numbers of southern democrats are keenly interested in adequate funds for flood control, as it affects their sections, and they may be influenced by the administration argument against attempting too expensive a cut this year.

Speaker of the House Longworth hopes to get the deficiency bill, tax reduction and an alien property measure through the house before Christmas. Flood relief cannot be taken up until after the holidays because the army engineers' report, on which the bill will be based, will not be ready until Dec. 1, and considerable time will be necessary to draft a measure.

Formal investigation of charges that the national council of state legislatures, an outgrowth of the American Taxpayers' League, is conducting a well-financed lobby for repeal of the estate tax was indicated in a statement by Chairman Green of the ways and means committee that he would support a bill for such investigation.

TO REBUILD RADIO STATION WAMD

Minneapolis, Nov. 12.—(U.P.)—Plans to rebuild radio station WAMD, Minneapolis, were under way today almost before embers of the fire which late yesterday destroyed the structure housing the station's equipment, were cool. The loss was estimated at $34,000.

While owners conferred on plans for the new station, an unofficial probe to determine the cause of the fire was under way. The fire was discovered a short time after a radio engineer had left the building. He reported that everything was all right at the station when he departed.

During the time work is under way on the new station, WAMD's programs will be broadcast from station WRHM, the Rosedale hospital station here.

There is a well grounded rumor that extensive improvements are to be made at the Northern Pacific shops in this city in the near future. It is planned to enlarge the blacksmith shop as this department is entirely too much cramped for room. Another building is to be erected for the air brake repair department and his will be one of the most pretentious buildings on the grounds. Besides these recommendations have been made for additional equipment and machinery in the various departments. The shops are in a particular haste at this time and they are overcrowded with work.

Displaying colored sheets and pillow cases of crepe de chine. Imagine the luxury of sleeping beneath soft silk sheets! I am told that if the bed silks are laundered in the home they will outlast linen that is sent to the laundry. Of course, the heaviest grade of crepe de chine is used for the bed as cheaper grades would not stand wear. Certain French laundries will re-color sheets when they have become faded with many washings.

Then, too, there must be a little nightgown or pajamas of silk to match ones sheets. Whether this idea will meet with approval in America where laundresses are as scarce as winter artichokes remains to be seen. But before we cast the idea of silken bed-clothes out of our minds let us recall that perhaps as recent as ten years ago most of us believed that silk underclothing was an extravagance. Colored undergarments were considered flashy. One felt that clothes worn next to the body had to be a virginal white. Today white cotton under garments are relics of by-gone days as everyone wears silk in pastel colors.

There is a well grounded rumor that extensive improvements are to be made at the Northern Pacific shops in this city in the near future. It is planned to enlarge the blacksmith shop as this department is entirely too much cramped for room. Another building is to be erected for the air brake repair department and his will be one of the most pretentious buildings on the grounds. Besides these recommendations have been made for additional equipment and machinery in the various departments. The shops are in a particular hustle at this time and they are overcrowded with work.

THE MORE OF QUALITY

Displaying colored sheets and pillow cases of crepe de chine. Imagine the luxury of sleeping beneath soft silk sheets! I am told that if the bed silks are laundered in the home they will outlast linen that is sent to the laundry. Of course, the heaviest grade of crepe de chine is used for the bed as cheaper grades would not stand wear. Certain French laundries will re-color sheets when they have become faded with many washings.

Then, too, there must be a little nightgown or pajamas of silk to match ones sheets. Whether this idea will meet with approval in America where laundresses are as scarce as winter artichokes remains to be seen. But before we cast the idea of silken bed-clothes out of our minds let us recall that perhaps as recent as ten years ago most of us believed that silk underclothing was an extravagance. Colored undergarments were considered flashy. One felt that clothes worn next to the body had to be a virginal white. Today white cotton under garments are relics of by-gone days as everyone wears silk in pastel colors.

WIFE NO. 1 HAS HUSBAND TAKEN BY WIFE NO. 2

IRVING H. SCOT, ALIAS EARL H. SCOT HELD IN JAIL ON BIGAMY CHARGE

NEITHER WIFE IS EAGER TO PROCEED AGAINST WASHINGTON MAN

Washington, Nov. 12.—(UP)—How wife No. 1 silently watched her husband take her friend as wife No. 2 was revealed today as Irving H. Scot, alias Earl H. Scot, was held in jail on a bigamy charge.

Mrs. Anna Estes Scot, No. 1, decided to "waste too much affection on Scotty," who, she says, "when he is good is very, very good, but when he is bad—oh, boy!"

She took a job in a restaurant where she met Miss Frances Van Lear, the cashier.

Not long afterward "Scotty" entered the cafe with the pretty cashier, introducing her to all, including his wife, as his "new bride." Wife No. 1 congratulated the couple.

Thereafter the two wives developed a deep friendship. But it was not until wife No. 2 went to a shop to pawn some jewels that she learned of her husband's relation to wife No. 1. She found wife No. 1 in the shop, also pawning some trinkets. They became confidential, and the true story was revealed.

Said wife No. 2: "I love Scotty, but if he's yours I'm going to get an annulment. You be my witness."

Replied wife No. 1: "No. If you like him you had better keep him."

Wife No. 2 appealed to authorities to compel No. 1's appearance. Scot's arrest followed.

Neither wife is eager to proceed against him, it is said.

KILLS WIFE AND SON WITH HAMMER THEN SLAYS SELF

DESPONDENCY OVER FINANCIAL TROUBLES CAUSE OF DEED OF H. P. ALLEN

KING CITY, MISSOURI MAN, USED SHOTGUN TO END HIS LIFE

King City, Mo., Nov. 12.—(UP)—Dependancy over financial troubles was believed to have caused H. P. Allen, 57-year-old farmer living six miles north of here, to kill his wife and 29-year-old son with a hammer, and shoot himself with a shotgun.

Bodies of all three were found yesterday afternoon. The slaying was believed to have taken place on Thursday night. C. W. Whiteley, county coroner, will hold an inquest today.

Allen's body was found in a downstairs bedroom in his farm home. A shotgun stood nearby. The body of his wife lay in a pool of blood in the same room in which Allen was found. The body of Lloyd C. Allen, the son, was found in bed in an upstairs room.

Mother and son had their heads crushed with hammer blows. The blood spattered weapon believed used in the killing was found in the kitchen of the home. The theory that Allen was intoxicated when he perpetrated his killings was strengthened by the finding of partly filled bottles containing liquor in his room.

Friends of the dead family said Allen had been worried of late over financial matters.

Oil Used Medicinally

Olive oil in ancient times had a medicinal use. The prophet Isaiah alludes to the use of oil as ointment in medical treatment. In his first chapter Isaiah describes the national corruption of Judah, and in verse six he states: "From the sole of the foot even unto the head there is no soundness in it; but wounds and bruises, and purifying sores; they have not been closed, neither bound up, neither mollified with ointment"—the ointment being oil. Its use as a medicine is also enjoined by St. James in his Epistle V. 14.

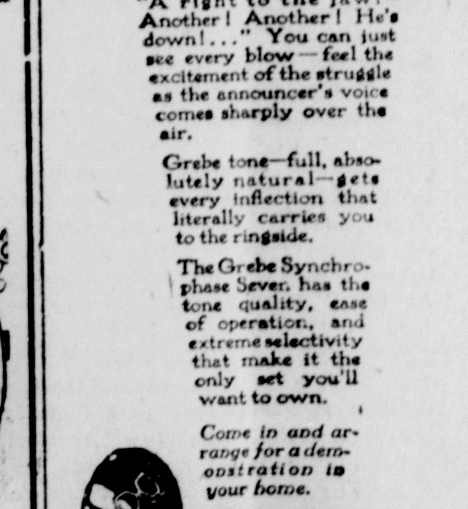

Olive oil in lamps was used for lighting purposes. How common was the practice is shown by the reference to lamps and oil in the parable of the virgins. The great lamps in the temple were fed with oil.

FATHER, HIS SON, AND TWO POLICEMEN ARE DEAD

2 OTHERS IN HOSPITAL, FIRING STARTED OVER CAR ARGUMENT

Oppia, Ala., Nov. 12.—(UP)—A father and his son and two policemen are dead and two others are in hospitals as the result of a gun fight on the main street here last night. The dead: Cleve Dauphin, 40; O. C. Dauphin, 18, his son; Edward Nix, 36, and Lee Clark, 43, policemen. The injured, both bystanders shot in the legs, are Mrs. Edie Davis and Grady Paul.

The shooting began, according to bystanders, when young Dauphin raced through town in an automobile, "yelling at the top of his voice."

Nix and Clark drew their revolvers and fired when Dauphin refused to stop.

The youth then drove to the home of his father, both of whom returned, took positions on a prominent street corner, and began firing.

After more than a score of shots, Dauphin and his son and Clark fell dead. Nix died on the way to a hospital.

Dauphin and his son had been accused of bootlegging.

GUN FIGHT ON MAIN STREET OF OPPA, ALA.

FATHER, HIS SON, AND TWO POLICEMEN ARE DEAD

2 OTHERS IN HOSPITAL, FIRING STARTED OVER CAR ARGUMENT

Oppa, Ala., Nov. 12.—(UP)—A father and his son and two policemen are dead and two others are in hospitals as the result of a gun fight on the main street here last night. The dead: Cleve Dauphin, 40; O. C. Dauphin, 18, his son; Edward Nix, 36, and Lee Clark, 43, policemen. The injured, both bystanders shot in the legs, are Mrs. Effie Davis and Grady Paul.

The shooting began, according to bystanders, when young Dauphin raced through town in an automobile, "yelling at the top of his voice."

Nix and Clark drew their revolvers and fired when Dauphin refused to stop.

The youth then drove to the home of his father, both of whom returned, took positions on a prominent street corner, and began firing.

After more than a score of shots, Dauphin and his son and Clark fell dead. Nix died on the way to a hospital.

Dauphin and his son had been accused of bootlegging.

ANOTHER BANK ROBBERY

THE robbery of the First National bank at Ironton, Minnesota, shows that Minnesota's defensive technique or its service of security, or what you will, is not what it should be. There was nothing startling or novel about the way the job was executed. Four bandits entered the bank late Wednesday afternoon, went through the usual procedure, and walked out with $35,000. They were unmasked, even, and made their escape in the usual waiting automobile.

At the time these lines are written, the bandits are still at large. Surely Minnesota should be able to make things more difficult for its bank robbers than that. Here was a daylight robbery, executed with the greatest of ease. The bandits were seen emerging from the bank and driving off in their automobile. And yet it was thirty minutes before the persons imprisoned in the vault were discovered and the alarm given.

Does not this point to the need of the state law enforcement department which the crime commission was urging upon the legislature last winter? The crime commission felt that Minnesota needed a law enforcement commissioner and several investigators. We got the bureau of criminal identification and apprehension, which was a step forward all right, but which fell far short of what the crime commission asked and what the situation demanded. A state sheriff with the ability to win co-operation and co-ordination among the law-enforcing officials throughout the state would be invaluable in fighting bank robbers. Counties, cities and villages are now operating as independent units in waging war against the bandits.

The legislature last session gave us not the powerful state law enforcement department demanded, but a central police bureau that could co-ordinate identification and crime record and be of some aid to local police forces. It should be apparent now that the legislature was mistaken in not adopting the recommendation of the crime commission. It is regrettable that a state possessing the resources and the intelligence of Minnesota should be overlooking anything in waging its war against bank bandits. We need a state law enforcing department vested with real powers. We shall never rid ourselves of the curse of banditry until organized for unified effort.—Minneapolis Tribune.

THE CHOICE OF A VOCATION

FEW people in this world are so fortunate as to become exactly what they desire to be. Usually those that are satisfied with their lot in life are those that have no ambition. The ambitious man is always preparing himself for a job ahead and is impatient to reach the goal. When that goal is reached, he looks ahead for the next.

A recent survey of 50,000 school students elicited some enlightening information. When asked if they desired to be farmers, ministers, or policemen, a big laugh arose. Yet some must take these necessary positions. Ninety-nine per cent of the children of parents engaged in manufacturing, agriculture, mining, lumbering and fishing indicate that they would not follow in their parents' footsteps. The majority wished to be bankers, doctors, dentists, teachers, authors, journalists, actors, artists and the like. Obviously this condition is economically unsound and the majority of these students are going to be disappointed. They will be forced into other lines, by necessity, and carry a blighted ambition with them to their graves. This survey was made in different sections of the country and is therefore representative.

In casting about for opportunities many a young man forgets that the United States Navy offers him chances to realize his ambition. Here he will find a great number of different lines and trades concentrated in a small space. He has a chance to look them over and decide on the one that seems to offer the most opportunities and which he prefers. He may have to wait for a time to break into the trade that he likes best or he may have to take up an allied work. He has a better chance of picking congenial work, with outside activities to keep his mind and body active. Too often, in civil life, he drifts from job to job, trying to find his life's work and finally drifts into a position unsuited to his abilities and temperament.

WINTER NEARING

WITH the temperature down to six degrees above zero last night and seven above at 8 a. m. it causes householders to think of coal, heavy flannels, storm windows and kindred topics.

Youth, however, has no such thoughts. They dwell on the ice rink, the ski slides, the hiking jaunts. One side of the house thinks of winter expense bills and the other viewpoint is all the pleasure that goes with our fine Minnesota winters.

Some like an open winter. Too much open winter and we have little work for our railway repair shops. Heavy snows, blockades, 40 below zero blazes mean wear and tear on railway equipment and consequently more shop work.

A mild winter means slow sales for the merchant who has his shelves stocked with seasonal merchandise. The whole temperature question is a matter of viewpoint and we know that if we had the disposition of weather we would never be able to please everybody.

OUR State Highway Department is amply prepared to buck snow this winter and keep our highways open. The first comprehensive snow clearing program for this section was put into effect last year and its success did much to stimulate business in Brainerd during the winter months. The department faces this season with added equipment and the experience gained last year. We appreciate everything that Commissioner Babcock and his trusty aids are doing for our district.

WE reminded people the other day about Christmas hovering near. Do your shopping early when the stocks are good, when the clerks have opportunity to wait on you satisfactorily and before the mails and rail service begin to feel the real Christmas avalanche.

OUR high school football boys fought a good battle in their game with Crosby-Ironton, when they lost 12 to 2. They showed just as fine sportsmanship in defeat as they did when they won their previous five victories.

William the Silent

A YOUNG man—scarcely more than a boy—tall, dark, strikingly handsome, stood listening to a plan outlined to him by Henry II of France, to whose court he had been sent as hostage by his sovereign, Emperor Charles V of Germany. Henry's plan was of a somewhat alarming nature, for it involved the massacring of all the Protestants in France and the Netherlands. Yet the young man, himself a Netherlander, gave no sign of the horror he felt, and spoke no word to put the wily French king on his guard. For this bit of discretion he received thereafter the nickname of "William the Silent," although his nature was open, frank and far removed from taciturnity.

"William the Silent," prince of Orange and count of Nassau, was born in the Netherlands in 1533. As a youth he attracted the favor of Charles V, who taught him war and statecraft. On Charles' abdication the retiring monarch's son, Philip I, became king of Spain and of the Netherlands. He was cold-blooded, bigoted and stupid; the exact opposite of his great father. The Dutch states making up the Netherlands had even in Charles' time resented royal authority, and it had required all the old emperor's tact and statecraft to keep them pacified. Now, under the new king, they again grew restive. To make things worse Philip ordered a branch of the cruel inquisition established in Holland. This raised a storm of angry protests, and Philip sent the bloody duke of Alva with an army into the Netherlands to enforce order.

Enraged by the oppression of his countrymen, William the Silent raised an army to oppose Alva; but the dull Dutch burghers were not yet ready for so radical an act, and William had to disband his forces for lack of support. In no way discouraged, he hit on a new plan for harassing the hated Spaniards. By advice of Admiral Coligny of France he issued "letters of marque," authorizing Dutch privateers to prey on Spain's ships and sea-coast. These privateers banded together under the nickname of the "Beggars of the Sea." They did incalculable damage to Spanish commerce and for years made their name a terror to all their country's foes.

In 1572 the Dutch again revolted against Spanish tyranny and made William their stadtholder, or governor. Yet, warned by his former failure, he saw that the people were not yet ready for absolute freedom; so he simply ruled in the name of King Philip. Spain increased its oppressions and war followed. William's two brothers were slain in battle, and one critical juncture he ordered the dikes broken down that kept out the sea from the low-lying Netherlands and the country flooded to save it from falling into the enemy's hands. Philip's armies besieged Leyden, but William drove them away and raised the siege.

At last the time for freedom was ripe. Through William's efforts a number of the Netherlands provinces combined, drew up and signed a declaration of independence, with the avowed purpose of driving out the Spaniards and forming a free and united country where all religious sects should be at liberty to worship God in their own way. Thus the United Netherlands was founded.

In 1581 allegiance to Spain was formally renounced. William, the prime mover and central figure in the revolution, had devoted his entire life to this one great purpose. Yet when it was accomplished he would not make himself king of the newly created nation, but contented himself with governing it under the less pretentious title of "count."

Philip, seeing that William was the backbone of the entire revolutionary movement, hit on a most characteristic plan for weakening the union of the provinces. Instead of sending armies at once to attack the revolutionists or to ravage their country in true medieval Spanish style, he merely issued a proclamation offering a huge sum of money for the murder of William.

Even in the country William had freed there were many scoundrels ready and eager to win the reward. Attempt after attempt was made to kill him, and for the last three years of his life the Liberator was in continuous danger of death. Undaunted by this new peril and the black ingratitude it involved, William continued calmly on his way.

But, though a threatened man five long, the end came all too soon for the welfare of the United Netherlands. On July 11, 1584, a man named Balthazar Gerard, actuated by desire for the blood-money promised by Philip, entered William's house and shot him. Philip had conquered, in so far as he had rid himself of an invincible foe. But the independence that William the Silent had won for Holland has remained to this day. The example in disinterested patriotism, statesmanship, honesty and justice that he set to the whole world served as a guiding star to many another, sorely perplexed ruler in those dark corrupt days.

William the Silent's character and career bore a striking resemblance to those of George Washington, the resemblance being further carried out in the former's affectionate nickname of "the Father of the Netherlands."

An Object of Charity

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

"OF COURSE," said Dorothy's aunt, Mrs. Morgan, in her coldest tone, "Of course, Dorothy, I am astonished that you should so far forget what you owe me—who have cured you for years and treated you as my own daughter, instead of an object of charity which you really have been all these years—that you should so forget what is due me and your Cousin Florence, my daughter, as to attempt to attract to yourself one of her admirers!"

"Just which one of Florence's admirers can you mean, Aunt Julia?" she asked.

"Richard Wardley."

"Ah!" Was it a sigh that issued from pale lips? "I have always known Dick, Aunt Julia. I understood you to say that you really consider me as an object of charity—I wonder if it would be a relief if I went away for good—back to grandmother's old place; you know I still have that. It is all furnished, and perhaps I could get Cousin Susan Jessup to come and live with me, and after awhile I could earn money enough to pay you back for my education—and—and for my board and clothes—for everything."

It took much argument, but finally Mrs. Morgan gave her consent, so that by the time her own daughter, Florence, returned from a house party, Dorothy had departed with all her belongings.

Florence, a decided blonde, with close-cropped hair, and hard, brilliant blue eyes, smiled relievedly. "I was fond of Dorothy, you know, mother," she said, "but she was considered a beautiful girl and the boys were quite crazy about her. I shall just tell them that she has gone back to the country and invent a name for the place! As for Dick—I am quite sure that the attraction was merely casual! If I lose him, mother, I shall marry Lawrence Phelps—he has asked me."

As for Dorothy Morgan and her mother's cousin, Susan Jessup, they seemed to be perfectly happy in the tiny village in the hills.

"It's never lonely here, dearie," said Cousin Susan cheerfully on the first Sunday when they rested from the cleaning of grandmother's delightful old house. "I tried to count the motor cars that passed in an hour, and when I got into the hundreds, I just stopped."

"Since we have been cleaning house, Cousin Susan, I have been wondering if you would help me to turn this into a tea room?"

"My dear child! Could we do it, dear?" asked Miss Jessup excitedly. "Why not? Here is the location—an ideal old house—we could set small tables on the west veranda, it is so large, as well as in the big dining room. There are plenty of dishes—old and new—it would be fun and we could earn lots of money."

After that, the Garden house was an entire success, tables were engaged ahead, by letter, wire and telephone. There was much to do and many more helpers in the kitchen and dining room. Dorothy worked like a beaver, and every day she drove in the cheap little car she had bought over to the large town a few miles away to put money in the bank. It was only on these lonely rides that Dorothy permitted herself to think of the man she loved, for she had, in an unguarded moment, given her heart to dear old Dick Wardley—and now she had run away from him.

She was thinking back over all these days as she drove to the bank one September day. She was just leaving the bank, half an hour later, when she saw a small motor car drive up and stop.

The man in the car was Dick Wardley!

He saw her at the same moment, but instantly she was in her own car, speeding away toward the mountain road, a back trail that led around to the rear of the Garden house. She could easily get away from him if Dick chose to follow her by highway. There were things she had wanted to do—groceries to buy, but she would have to use the telephone at home. As for Dick—she could not see him face to face without betraying her joy at meeting him again.

Half an hour later, she had driven, through the back way and was trying to explain to Susan.

In a few minutes Dorothy, with freshly brushed hair and a crisp pink frock, sat behind the cashier's little table. Two or three women prepared to leave and after they had paid Dorothy they went out, leaving a solitary man sitting, facing the road, his back toward her. He was smoking a cigarette. Dorothy imagined something strangely familiar about that sturdy figure, about the fine head with its smooth brown hair, and, while she stared at him, suddenly he turned around and with one look at her jumped up and came to her.

"Dorothy—Dorothy—my little love," he said tensely and took her into his strong arms, and when Dorothy murmured something about her Cousin Florence, Dick laughed and told her that Florence was engaged to marry Larry Phelps! "If she hadn't forgotten the name of your town, dear, I would have found you long ago!" he said.

And now, Miss Susan Jessup runs the tea room all alone, but she is happy and contented.

Accompanied by his faithful stork, the Bitner baby arrived this morning. There was a great deal of rushing around, but things have quieted down now, and advice is pouring in!

Counselors, well-meaning and many, have arisen: "I used this talcum and that soap," "those bottles are best," and "Blank's have the best carriages." But behind these advices looms the most practical, most modern and most economical counselor of them all: advertising.

Advertising will tell Mrs. Bitner not only which talcum, which blankets, which carriages are best, but it will also give her many helpful hints on keeping her baby healthy and happy. It will suggest toys for his busy hands, shoes for his scampering feet, clothes and foods for his sturdy body, as well as books to set his eager mind to work. In no way discouraged, he hit on a new plan for harassing the hated Spaniards. By advice of Admiral Coligny of France he issued "letters of marque," authorizing Dutch privateers to prey on Spain's ships and sea-coast. These privateers banded together under the nickname of the "Beggars of the Sea." They did incalculable damage to Spanish commerce and for years made their name a terror to all their country's foes.

In 1572 the Dutch again revolted against Spanish tyranny and made William their stadtholder, or governor. Yet, warned by his former failure, he saw that the people were not yet ready for absolute freedom; so he simply ruled in the name of King Philip. Spain increased its oppressions and war followed. William's two brothers were slain in battle, and one critical juncture he ordered the dikes broken down that kept out the sea from the low-lying Netherlands and the country flooded to save it from falling into the enemy's hands. Philip's armies besieged Leyden, but William drove them away and raised the siege.

At last the time for freedom was ripe. Through William's efforts a number of the Netherlands provinces combined, drew up and signed a declaration of independence, with the avowed purpose of driving out the Spaniards and forming a free and united country where all religious sects should be at liberty to worship God in their own way. Thus the United Netherlands was founded.

In 1581 allegiance to Spain was formally renounced. William, the prime mover and central figure in the revolution, had devoted his entire life to this one great purpose. Yet when it was accomplished he would not make himself king of the newly created nation, but contented himself with governing it under the less pretentious title of "count."

Philip, seeing that William was the backbone of the entire revolutionary movement, hit on a most characteristic plan for wrecking the union of the provinces. Instead of sending armies at once to attack the revolutionists or to ravage their country in true medieval Spanish style, he merely issued a proclamation offering a huge sum of money for the murder of William.

Even in the country William had read there were many scoundrels ready and eager to win the reward. Attempt after attempt was made to kill him, and for the last three years of his life the Liberator was in continuous danger of death. Undaunted by this new peril and the black ingratitude it involved, William continued calmly on his way.

But, though threatened men live long, the end came all too soon for the welfare of the United Netherlands. On July 11, 1584, a man named Balthazar Gerard, actuated by desire for the blood-money promised by Philip, entered William's house and shot him.

Philip had conquered, in so far as he had rid himself of an invincible foe. But the independence that William the Silent had won for Holland has remained to this day. The example of disinterested patriotism, statesmanship, honesty and justice that he set to the whole world served as a guiding star to many another sorely perplexed ruler in those dark corrupt days.

William the Silent's character and career bore a striking resemblance to those of George Washington, the resemblance being further carried out in the former's affectionate nickname of "the Father of the Netherlands."

An Object of Charity

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

"OF COURSE," said Dorothy's aunt, Mrs. Morgan, in her coldest tone. "Of course, Dorothy, I am astonished that you should so far forget what you owe me—who have cared for you for years and treated you as my own daughter, instead of an object of charity which you really have been all these years—that you should so forget what is due me and your Cousin Florence, my daughter, as to attempt to attract to yourself one of her admirers!"

"Just which one of Florence's admirers can you mean, Aunt Julia?" she asked.

"Richard Wardley."

"Ah!" Was it a sigh that issued from pale lips? "I have always known Dick, Aunt Julia. I understood you to say that you really considered me as an object of charity—I wonder if it would be a relief if I went away for good—back to grandmother's old place; you know I still have that. It is all furnished, and perhaps I could get Cousin Susan Jessup to come and live with me, and after awhile I could earn money enough to pay you back for my education—and—for my board and clothes—for everything."

It took much argument, but finally Mrs. Morgan gave her consent, so that by the time her own daughter, Florence, returned from a house party, Dorothy had departed with all her belongings.

Florence, a decided blonde, with close-cropped hair, and hard, brilliant blue eyes, smiled relievedly. "I was fond of Dorothy, you know, mother," she said, "but she was considered a beautiful girl and the boys were quite crazy about her. I shall just tell them that she has gone back to the country and invent a name for the place! As for Dick—I am quite sure that the attraction was merely casual! If I lose him, mother, I shall marry Lawrence Phelps—he has asked me."

As for Dorothy Morgan and her mother's cousin, Susan Jessup, they seemed to be perfectly happy in the tiny village in the hills.

"It's never lonely here, dearie," said Cousin Susan cheerfully on the first Sunday when they rested from the cleaning of grandmother's delightful old house. "I tried to count the motor cars that passed in an hour, and when I got into the hundreds, I just stopped."

"Since we have been cleaning house, Cousin Susan, I have been wondering if you would help me to turn this into a tea room?"

"My dear child! Could we do it, dear?" asked Miss Jessup excitedly. "Why not? Here is the location—an ideal old house—we could set small tables on the wet veranda, it is so large, as well as in the big dining room. There are plenty of dishes—old and new—it would be fun and we could earn lots of money."

After that, the garden house was an entire success, tables were engaged ahead, by letter, wire and telephone. There was much to do and many more helpers in the kitchen and dining room. Dorothy worked like a beaver, and every day she drove in the cheap little car she had bought over to the large town a few miles away to put money in the bank. It was only on these lonely rides that Dorothy permitted herself to think of the man she loved, for she had, in an unguarded moment, given her heart to dear old Dick Wardley—and now she had run away from him.

She was thinking back over all these days as she drove to the bank one September day. She was just leaving the bank, half an hour later, when she saw a small motor car drive up and stop.

The man in the car was Dick Wardley!

He saw her at the same moment, but instantly she was in her own car, speeding away toward the mountain road, a back trail that led around to the rear of the garden house. She could easily get away from him if Dick chose to follow her by highway. There were things she had wanted to do—groceries to buy, but she would have to use the telephone at home. As for Dick—she could not see him face to face without betraying her joy at meeting him again.

Half an hour later, she had driven, through the back way and was trying to explain to Susan.

In a few minutes Dorothy, with freshly brushed hair and a crisp pink frock, sat behind the cashier's little table. Two or three women prepared to leave and after they had paid Dorothy they went out, leaving a solitary man sitting, facing the road, his back toward her. He was smoking a cigarette. Dorothy imagined something strangely familiar about that sturdy figure, about the fine head with its smooth brown hair, and, while she stared at him, suddenly he turned around and with one look at her jumped up and came to her.

"Dorothy—Dorothy—my little love," he said tensely and took her into his strong arms, and when Dorothy murmured something about her Cousin Florence, Dick laughed and told her that Florence was engaged to marry Larry Phelps: "If she hadn't forgotten the name of your town, dear, I would have found you long ago!" he said.

And now, Miss Susan Jessup runs the tea room all alone, but she is happy and contented.

An Old Proverb

An old proverb says to "be content with your lot while you look for a better." That's more than merely an old saw. It expresses the desirable end of a whole personal philosophy. The calm confronting of circumstances, the acceptance of things as they are—that is the way to peace. But this does not mean we should lack the enterprise and courage to change our circumstances when the way really opens. —Mobile Register.

Mountain Tops

Some mountains have a soft clay base topped with heavy sandstone. The clay becomes water-soaked through seepage and can no longer hold up the weight. Consequently the slope of the peaks steadily "rolls down" to a less steep inclination as the tremors of the mountainsides shake down gravel from the tops. Meekers mountain and Golden mountain in Colorado are examples.

Enter: the baby!

Accompanied by his faithful stork, the Bitner baby arrived this morning. There was a great deal of rushing around, but things have quieted down now, and advice is pouring in!

Counselors, well-meaning and many, have arisen: "I used this talcum and that soap," "those bottles are best," and "Blank's have the best carriages." But behind these advices looms the most practical, most modern and most economical counselor of them all: advertising.

Advertising will tell Mrs. Bitner not only which talcum, which blankets, which carriages are best, but it will also give her many helpful hints on keeping her baby healthy and happy. It will suggest toys for his busy hands, shoes for his scampering feet, clothes and foods for his sturdy body, as well as books to set his eager mind to work. And, as the years go by, Mrs. Bitner will keep young, and look young too. For advertising will help her solve one of the greatest economic problems of her home—buying the best for her family at the best prices.

ARMY'S MIGHTIEST GUNS READY FOR NOTRE DAME RUSH

FIFTH ANNUAL INTERSECTIONAL GAME PLAYED

WILSON, CAGLE AND MURRELL
PRIMED FOR SHOT AT
IRISH

IRISH HAVE LOST ONLY 8 GAMES
IN 106 PLAYED IN 11
YEARS

Final Score:
Army 18 Notre Dame 0

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Yankee Stadium, New York, Nov. 12.—The army's mightiest guns were ready for the charge of Notre Dame's brigade today.

Before 76,000 persons—the largest crowd that ever witnessed a football game in New York city—the Army and Notre Dame were prepared for their fifth annual intersectional game.

Captain Lighthorse Harry Wilson, Chris Cagle and Eddie Murrell—three of the best offensive weapons on any team in the country—were primed for their final shot at the Irish.

Wilson, All-American back at Penn State, Cagle, a star at Louisiana, and Murrell, a great player from Minnesota, operating behind a fierce, driving line, carried the hopes of Army into this battle.

Army came down here last year with a great team only to go away smarting under a 7-0 defeat inflicted by a cunning Notre Dame eleven.

Army swung into action today seeking revenge.

But the Army faced a tremendous task, the size of which may be realized by the record of the Notre Dame team under Rockne's regime. The Irish have lost only eight games in 106 played in eleven years. Ninety-four were victories and four ties.

Notre Dame's 1927 eleven is a typical Rockne team. A squad of 35 high class football players, finely conditioned and expertly trained in stratagems of the gridiron.

Rockne had two complete teams lined up for action today and he preferred to wait until the last minute to decide whether to start his first team, his second team or a combination.

Notre Dame was favored to win, but Notre Dame is always favored. The odds were as high as 2 to 1 in some quarters. Many smart football critics believed in the Army.

New York, Nov. 12.—Notre Dame has an edge on the Army in their 13 football games played since the first game in 1913. The Irish have won 9 games, lost three and one was a scoreless tie. No game was played in 1918.

MICHIGAN-NAVY
TO ATTRACT 83,000

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 12.—(UP)—A record crowd of more than 83,000 persons filed into the new Michigan stadium today to see the intersectional Michigan-Navy football game—the third of a series between the two schools.

Although Michigan was defeated by Illinois and Navy was humbled by Notre Dame, interest in the game has increased rather than lapsed.

In the first game in 1925, Michigan ran wild against the sailors. Last season the fighting Middies downed the Wolverines at Baltimore.

HARVARD CLASHES WITH BROWN U

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 12.—(UP)—With Art French, former quarterback shifted to the halfback position, Harvard coaches were to send the heaviest team against Brown university today.

Fifty thousand fans are expected to see the Brown team attempt to recover from their repeated losses and repeat their victory over the Crimson last year. Brown has lost its last five games.

IOWA VS. WISCONSIN;
BADGER BACKFIELD
THOUGHT FORMIDABLE

Madison, Wis., Nov. 12.—(UP)—Despite after losing 10 consecutive Big Ten football games, Iowa lined up against Wisconsin today, determined to end the disastrous record. The Badger backfield—Capt. Crofoot, Rose Rebholz and Hayes was expected to let loose a forward passing attack while Glasgow and Pignatelli were regarded as the Hawkeyes' chief ground gainers.

DAD'S DAY AT ILLINOIS VS. CHICAGO GAME

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 12.—(UP)—Before a Dad's day crowd of more than 30,000 persons the University of Illinois football team today met the University of Chicago in a game which may have an important bearing on the Big Ten championship.

If the Illini wins today, only one hurdle—Ohio State—will obstruct its path to the championship. Things broke nicely for the Illini this season. They played both Northwestern and Michigan after those schools had worked themselves up for Ohio State, little dreaming of Illinois' true strength. Today Chicago takes the field against them, after a string of hard battles, and possibly minus the services of the outstanding star—Ken Rouse, captain and center.

The Illini suffered their first hard luck of the season yesterday when Douglas Mills, punter, was called some by the death of his father. Walker is a good punter, however, and Mills may not be missed.

NORTHWESTERN TO LINE UP AGAINST INDIANA UNIVERSITY

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 12.—(UP)—Northwestern university's football team was pursued by the same jinx which has haunted it all season today, as it lined up against Indiana. Capt. Vic Gustafson will be unable to play, physicians aid, as the result of an injured knee. Fisher and Lewis, two other players mangled in previous games, will be able to play, however.

NEBRASKA AND PITTSBURGH PANTHERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 12.—(UP)—After six years of non-competition the Nebraska Cornhuskers and the Pittsburgh Panthers met in the Pitt stadium today in an outstanding intersectional game.

DEMPSEY-KEARNS LEGAL BATTLE TO OPEN TUESDAY

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 12.—(UP)—When the legal battle between Jack Dempsey and his former manager, Jack Kearns, opens Tuesday it will be fought before a jury instead of a single judge, according to the ruling of Judges Rellstab and Bodine in United States district court.

The ruling is considered a victory for the former heavyweight champion in the suit brought against him by Kearns who alleges that Dempsey broke a contract with him, causing him to lose $365,333.33.

The court held yesterday that Dempsey had a constitutional right to a jury trial.

BRAINERD DROPS LAST GRID BATTLE OF SEASON 12 TO 2

REFEREE MAKES A DECISION
AGAINST LOCALS IN CRU-CIAL TIME OF GAME

CROSBY PUSHES OVER LINE FOR TWO TOUCHDOWNS IN LAST HALF

Brainerd lost to Crosby by the count of 12 to 2 in the last football game of the season yesterday afternoon on the Crosby battle grounds in a game featured by the offensive drive of the Crosby team in the second half and the tight defensive game of the Brainerd team in the first half.

Coach Warren Kasch had the following comments to make on the play in general: "The offensive drive of the Crosby team was superior to that of the Brainerd team but to offset this, the stubborn Brainerd defense held the driving Crosby team until a decision by the referee disheartened the local boys. I think that the Brainerd team would have held the Crosby team scoreless had it not been for the decision made by the referee at a crucial time of the game. The ball would have changed hands on the next play and Brainerd would have been out of danger had not this penalty been called by the referee. As yet no reason for the penalty can be figured out. Crosby was on their own 20-yard line and tried an end run and lost about ten yards and would have had fifteen yards to make on the next down. Chances are certain that Brainerd could have held the line. Brainerd would then have immediately punted out of danger because the wind was at their backs. I don't believe in complaining or making excuses but this was one time when I think that a decision changed the game. On another occasion the referee asked the ball to be measured for a first down and the head linesman motioned for the ball as first down." Jacobson of Millaca refereed.

The Brainerd boys started off in whirlwind fashion, putting Crosby back to their own goal line where they punted. The punt that Crosby tried was blocked but was recovered by a Crosby man, giving two points to Brainerd. The first half then was a see-saw affair with both teams punting on fourth down. The Crosby drive on certain plays was strong but the Brainerd defense checked them on every occasion. Cross bucks and trick plays were tried by Crosby but the men were nailed in their tracks on each occasion.

It looked as if the scoring would end for that game. However in the second half the Crosby team came back with an added punch and advanced the ball for two first downs. Then the Brainerd team held them but at this time the fatal penalty came. With the ball on the ten-yard line as a result of this penalty, a Crosby man went around left end for a touchdown after a fumble had been made on the play.

Crosby was given the advantage of the wind in the fourth quarter. They punted and the ball rolled clear down to the Brainerd ten-yard line. Brainerd immediately punted out of danger but the wind held the ball back to the 25-yard line and from here on the Crosby team showed the punch that had been characteristic of their play all season and added the second touchdown of the game. Crosby earned this touchdown but the damage had been done so that the defense of the Brainerd team was not what it was in the first half.

McTIGUE AND GAINS FIGHT 10 ROUND DRAW

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 12.—(UP)—Mike McTigue, former light heavyweight champion, and Larry Gains, colored light heavyweight champion, fought ten rounds to a draw here last night. Gains had an advantage in the early rounds but this was overtaken by the veteran McTigue in the latter stages. The decision was generally contested by the fans who thought Gains had a safe margin.

Jack Barnes, at quarterback, has been playing brilliant football for Drake University this season, and he is recognized as one of the real mainstays of Coach Ossie Solem's eleven.

In games against the Navy, Pittsburgh, Simpson, Ames and Grinnell, Barnes has displayed keen field generalship and has ripped off many nice gains. He has real ability as a forward-passer and can punt for an average of 40 yards.

Barnes, who is a product of West Des Moines high school, is playing

COACH "DOC" SPEARS TO MAKE LIBERAL USE OF RE-SERVES

Near the end of the first half, the score stood: Minnesota, 27; Drake, 0.

Memorial Stadium, Minneapolis, Nov. 12.—(UP)—Drake University's fighting Bulldogs from Des Moines, with great prestige to gain and comparatively little to lose, faced the powerful Gopher machine today.

In preparation for the final conflict of the Minnesota team next week against Michigan, Coach "Doc" Spears made liberal use of reserves. It is the final contest at home for about a dozen Gophers, including the line-smashing fullback, Captain Herb Joesting, Mally Nydahl, star halfback, and Shorty Almquist, quarterback.

The weather was clear and cold. About 20,000 persons witnessed the game.

Halt Sawdust Waste; Make Plaster of It

Washington.—Sawdust is no longer considered a waste product. Its many uses range from the manufacture of dolls to dynamite, according to a statement made by Axel H. Oxholm, director of the national committee on wood utilization, Department of Commerce.

About 10 per cent of the average sawlog represents sawdust produced in converting the raw material into lumber. Mr. Oxholm states, "Heretofore this sawdust has been considered as a waste product, but industry has spent millions of dollars in developing profitable uses for it. Sawdust should, therefore, be termed 'nonutilized wood' and not 'waste,' because it has important potential uses, the department contends.

The 63 sawmills operating in Illinois are big producers of sawdust. Formerly the United States imported large quantities of porcelain dolls from Europe, but this trade has now been replaced by a new doll industry, using wood flour instead of porcelain.

More than 15,000 tons of wood flour are used in the manufacture of linoleum. It is also utilized in making oatmeal wall paper, artificial wood and other molded products. Over 7,000 tons of wood flour are used in the manufacture of dynamite.

Although the United States possesses a greater variety of raw material for the manufacturing of wood flour than any other country, it is still importing from Europe over one-fifth of the total requirements.

Old Women in France Carry Loads of Stone

Dieppe, France.—Nearly all old women do the heavy work of porters here in the fish markets and on the beach, where they carry loads of stone weighing 150 to 200 pounds on their backs.

These women plod from the fishing boats to the market and from the beaches to the dumping grounds carrying heavily loaded baskets. Their cheery countenances indicate that they are not overburdened.

The stones are exported to England for the manufacture of porcelain. They must be carried through sliding shingle up a steep grade to the carts. Here the carriers dump their loads by making a deep bow and allowing the stones to rush out over their heads.

He said he had been corresponding with Jimmy De Forrest, well known trainer.

"I have the greatest confidence in myself," he said. "At present I weigh 232 pounds, and will need only 15 weeks to get into condition. A physician who examined me last week said my heart was okay and equal to that of a man five years younger."

ARMY'S MIGHTIEST GUNS READY FOR NOTRE DAME RUSH

FIFTH ANNUAL INTERSECTIONAL GAME PLAYED

WILSON, CAGLE AND MURRELL
PRIMED FOR SHOT AT
IRISH

IRISH HAVE LOST ONLY 8 GAMES
IN 106 PLAYED IN 11
YEARS

Final Score:
Army 18 Notre Dame 0

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Yankee Stadium, New York, Nov. 12. — The army's mightiest guns were ready for the charge of Notre Dame's brigade today.

Before 76,000 persons—the largest crowd that ever witnessed a football game in New York city—the Army and Notre Dame were prepared for their fifth annual intersectional game.

Captain Lighthorse Harry Wilson, Chris Cagle and Eddie Murrell—three of the best offensive weapons on any team in the country—were primed for their final shot at the fighting Irish.

Wilson, All-American back at Penn State, Cagle, a star at Louisiana, and Murrell, a great player from Minnesota, operating behind a fierce, driving line, carried the hopes of Army into this battle.

Army came down here last year with a great team only to go away smarting under a 7-0 defeat inflicted by a cunning Notre Dame eleven.

Army swung into action today seeking revenge.

But the Army faced a tremendous task, the size of which may be realized by the record of the Notre Dame team under Rockne's regime. The Irish have lost only eight games in 106 played in eleven years. Ninety-four were victories and four ties.

Notre Dame's 1927 eleven is a typical Rockne team. A squad of 35 high class football players, finely conditioned and expertly trained in stratagems of the gridiron.

Rockne had two complete teams lined up for action today and he preferred to wait until the last minute to decide whether to start his first team, his second team or a combination.

Notre Dame was favored to win, but Notre Dame is always favored. The odds were as high as 2 to 1 in some quarters. Many smart football critics believed in the Army.

New York, Nov. 12.—Notre Dame has an edge on the Army in their 12 football games played since the first game in 1913. The Irish have won 9 games, lost three and one was a scoreless tie. No game was played in 1918.

MICHIGAN-NAVY TO ATTRACT 83,000

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 12.—(UP)—A record crowd of more than 83,000 persons filed into the new Michigan stadium today to see the intersectional Michigan-Navy football game—the third of a series between the two schools.

Although Michigan was defeated by Illinois and Navy was humbled by Notre Dame, interest in the game has increased rather than lapsed.

In the first game in 1925, Michigan ran wild against the sailors. Last season the fighting Middles downed the Wolverines at Baltimore.

HARVARD CLASHES WITH BROWN

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 12.—(UP)—With Art French, former quarterback shifted to the halfback position, Harvard coaches were to send the heaviest team against Brown university today.

Fifty thousand fans are expected to see the Brown team attempt to recover from their repeated losses and repeat their victory over the Crimson last year. Brown has lost its last five games.

IOWA VS. WISCONSIN; BADGER BACKFIELD THOUGHT FORMIDABLE

Madison, Wis., Nov. 12.—(UP)—Desperate after losing 10 consecutive Big Ten football games, Iowa lined up against Wisconsin today, determined to end the disastrous record. The Badger backfield—Capt. Crofoot, Ross Rehbock and Hayes was expected to let loose a forward passing attack while Glasgow and Pignatelli were regarded as the Hawkeyes' chief ground gainers.

DAD'S DAY AT ILLINOIS VS. CHICAGO GAME

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 12.—(UP)—Before a Dad's day crowd of more than 10,000 persons the University of Illinois football team today met the University of Chicago in a game which may have an important bearing on the Big Ten championship.

If the Illinois wins today, only one hurdle—Ohio State—will obstruct its path to the championship. Things broke nicely for the Illinois this season. They played both Northwestern and Michigan after those schools had worked themselves up for Ohio State, little dreaming of Illinois' true strength. Today Chicago takes the field against them, after a string of hard battles, and possibly minus the services of the outstanding star—Ken Rouse, captain and center.

The Illinois suffered their first hard luck of the season yesterday when Douglas Mills, punter, was called home by the death of his father. Walker is a good punter, however, and Mills may not be missed.

NORTHWESTERN TO LINE UP AGAINST INDIANA UNIVERSITY

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 12.—(UP)—Northwestern university's football team was pursued by the same jinx which has haunted it all season today, as it lined up against Indiana. Capt. Vic Gustafson will be unable to play, physicians aid, as the result of an injured knee.

Fisher and Lewis, two other players battered in previous games, will be able to play, however.

NEBRASKA AND PITTSBURGH PANTHERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 12.—(UP)—After six years of non-competition the Nebraska Cornhuskers and the Pittsburgh Panthers met in the Pitt stadium today in an outstanding intersectional game.

DEMPSEY-KEARNS LEGAL BATTLE TO OPEN TUESDAY

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 12.—(UP)—When the legal battle between Jack Dempsey and his former manager, Jack Kearns, opens Tuesday it will be fought before a jury instead of a single judge, according to the ruling of Judges Reilstad and Bodine in United States district court.

The ruling is considered a victory for the former heavyweight champion in the suit brought against him by Kearns who alleges that Dempsey broke a contract with him, causing him to lose $333,333.33.

The court held yesterday that Dempsey had a constitutional right to a jury trial.

BRAINERD DROPS LAST GRID BATTLE OF SEASON 12 TO 2

REFEREE MAKES A DECISION AGAINST LOCALS IN CRUCIAL TIME OF GAME

CROSBY PUSHES OVER LINE FOR TWO TOUCHDOWNS IN LAST HALF

Brainerd lost to Crosby by the count of 12 to 2 in the last football game of the season yesterday afternoon on the Crosby battle grounds in a game featured by the offensive drive of the Crosby team in the second half and the tight defensive game of the Brainerd team in the first half.

Coach Warren Kasch had the following comments to make on the play in general: "The offensive drive of the Crosby team was superior to that of the Brainerd team but to offset this, the stubborn Brainerd defense held the driving Crosby team until a decision by the referee disheartened the local boys. I think that the Brainerd team would have held the Crosby team scoreless had it not been for the decision made by the referee at a crucial time of the game. The ball would have changed hands on the next play and Brainerd would have been out of danger had not this penalty been called by the referee. As yet no reason for the penalty can be figured out. Crosby was on their own 20-yard line and tried an end run and lost about ten yards and would have had fifteen yards to make on the next down. Chances are certain that Brainerd could have held the line. Brainerd would then have immediately punted out of danger because the wind was at their backs. I don't believe in complaining or making excuses but this was one time when I think that a decision changed the game. On another occasion the referee asked by the fans who thought Gains had a safe margin."

McTIGUE AND GAINS FIGHT 10 ROUND DRAW

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 12.—(UP)—Mike McTigue, former light heavyweight champion, and Larry Gains, colored light heavyweight champion, fought ten rounds to a draw here last night. Gains had an advantage in the early rounds but this was overtaken by the veteran McTigue in the latter stages. The decision was generally contested by the fans who thought Gains had a safe margin.

Jack Barnes, at quarterback, has been playing brilliant football for Drake University this season, and he is recognized as one of the real mainstays of Coach Ossie Solem's eleven.

In games against the Navy, Pittsburgh, Simpson, Ames and Grinnell, Barnes has displayed keen field generalship and has ripped off many nice gains. He has real ability as a forward-passer and can punt for an average of 40 yards.

Barnes, who is a product of West Des Moines high school, is playing down and the head linesman motioned for the ball as first down."

Jacobson of Milaca refereed.

The Brainerd boys started off in whirlwind fashion, putting Crosby back to their own goal line where they punted. The punt that Crosby tried was blocked but was recovered by a Crosby man, giving two points to Brainerd. The first half then was a see-saw affair with both teams punting on fourth down. The Crosby drive on certain plays was strong but the Brainerd defense checked them on every occasion. Cross bucks and trick plays were tried by Crosby but the men were nailed in their tracks on each occasion.

It looked as if the scoring would end for that game. However in the second half the Crosby team came back with an added punch and advanced the ball for two first downs. Then the Brainerd team hit them but at this time the fatal penalty came. With the ball on the ten-yard line as a result of this penalty, a Crosby man went around left end for a touchdown after a fumble had been made on the play.

Crosby was given the advantage of the wind in the fourth quarter. They punted and the ball rolled clear down to the Brainerd ten-yard line. Brainerd immediately punted out of danger but the wind held the ball back to the 25-yard line and from here on the Crosby team showed the punch that had been characteristic of their play all season and added the second touchdown of the game. Crosby earned this touchdown but the damage had been done so that the defense of the Brainerd team was not what it was in the first half.

DRAKE FIGHTING BULLDOGS FACE THE MINNESOTANS

Buenos Aires, Nov. 12.—(UP)—Luis Firpo has informed the United Press that he intends going to New York before May to reestablish himself as a contender for Gene Tunney's title.

He said he had been corresponding with Jimmy De Forrest, well known trainer.

"I have the greatest confidence in myself," he said. "At present I weigh 232 pounds, and will need only 15 weeks to get into condition. A physician who examined me last week said my heart was okay and equal to that of a man five years younger."

Memorial Stadium, Minneapolis, Nov. 12.—(UP)—Drake University's fighting Bulldogs from Des Moines, with great prestige to gain and comparatively little to lose, faced the powerful Gopher machine today.

In preparation for the final conflict of the Minnesota team next week against Michigan, Coach "Doc" Spears made liberal use of reserves.

It is the final contest at home for about a dozen Gophers, including the line-smashing fullback, Captain Herb Joesting, Mally Nydahl, star halfback, and Shorty Almquist, quarterback.

The weather was clear and cold. About 20,000 persons witnessed the game.

Halt Sawdust Waste; Make Plaster of It

Washington.—Sawdust is no longer considered a waste product. Its many uses range from the manufacture of dolls to dynamite, according to a statement made by Axel H. Oxholm, director of the national committee on wood utilization, Department of Commerce.

About 10 per cent of the average sawing represents sawdust produced in converting the raw material into lumber. Mr. Oxholm states. Heretofore this sawdust has been considered as a waste product, but industry has spent millions of dollars in developing profitable uses for it. Sawdust should, therefore, be termed "nonutilized wood" and not "waste," because it has important potential uses, the department contends.

The 63 sawmills operating in Illinois are big producers of sawdust. Formerly the United States imported large quantities of porcelain dolls from Europe, but this trade has now been replaced by a new doll industry, using wood flour instead of porcelain.

More than 15,000 tons of wood flour are used in the manufacture of linoleum. It is also utilized in making oatmeal wall paper, artificial wood and other molded products. Over 7,000 tons of wood flour are used in the manufacture of dynamite.

Although the United States possesses a greater variety of raw material for the manufacturing of wood flour than any other country, it is still importing from Europe over one-fifth of the total requirements.

Old Women in France Carry Loads of Stone

Dieppe, France.—Nearly all old women do the heavy work of porters here in the fish markets and on the beach, where they carry loads of stone weighing 150 to 200 pounds on their backs.

These women plod from the fishing boats to the market and from the beaches to the dumping grounds carrying heavily loaded baskets. Their cheery countenances indicate that they are not overburdened.

The stones are exported to England for the manufacture of porcelain. They must be carried through sliding shingle up a steep grade to the carts. Here the carriers dump their loads by making a deep bow and allowing the stones to rush out over their heads.

Junior Red Cross Army of 6,000,000 in Schools

Members of the Junior Red Cross proved a new capacity for service during the Mississippi flood, according to reports to Red Cross National Headquarters covering their work.

This group of enthusiastic school children responded spontaneously and generously to the needs of the flood victims. An indication of the importance of this help is contained in the report that Juniors in Boston contributed $7,500 to the relief fund.

Junior Red Cross members shared in reconstruction work in the Midwest torn by several years ago, after the Florida storm, and are in the post-flood operations of the Red Cross among the people in the Mississippi Valley.

Junior Red Cross has 5,322,757 members, an increase of 273,329 in the last year.

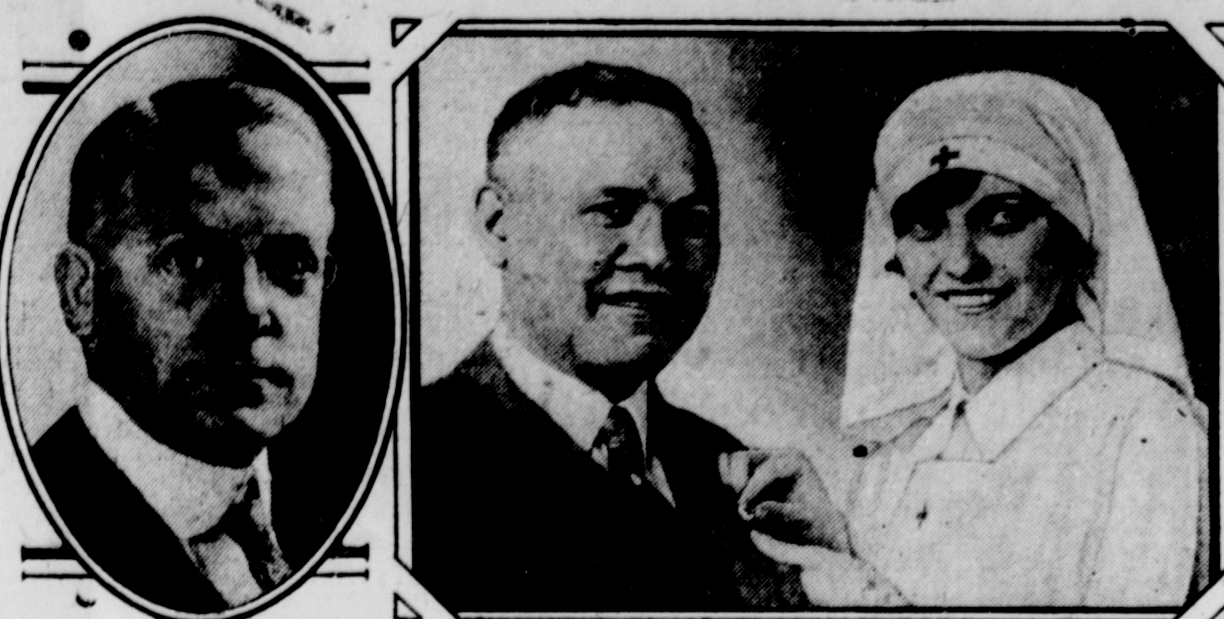

More than a million of the Junior Red Cross membership is distributed in the Philippines, Hawaii, Guam, Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Alaska, and includes Indian and Eskimo children. Through the medium of the Junior Red Cross in the United States, and similar groups abroad, children all over the world are being brought into closer understanding by international correspondence carried on by classes in the schools.

The Juniors at present have nearly twice the membership of the senior organization, but in the forthcoming membership enrollment of the Red Cross, from November 11 to 24, the goal of the adult membership is 5,000,000.

Business and Labor Join to Aid Red Cross

Heads of U. S. Chamber of Commerce and American Federation of Labor Urge Member Organizations and Individual Business Men and Workers to Support Red Cross Membership Enrollment

THE nation's business and industry, as represented by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, and the American Federation of Labor, has expressed anew its confidence in the American Red Cross, and heartily commends the record of service of the Red Cross in the past year.

The leaders of both the National Chamber and the Federation of Labor have called upon the member organizations of the two bodies, and the individual business leaders and workers to respond to the Red Cross appeal for membership of 5,000,000.

President Lewis E. Pierson of the Chamber of Commerce, in a letter to organization members throughout the country, points out that the demands upon the Red Cross have increased year by year, and are still increasing. To meet these demands, he states, requires the support of the large, popular membership, an effective organization and large resources.

"The Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America is heartily in sympathy with the national and international work of this great organization and speaks the generous cooperation of the business men of the Nation," continues President Pierson. "You will, I am confident, rally to this call and lend every possible support to the Red Cross in its annual membership campaign which is to be conducted throughout the country in the period between November 11 and 24."

President William Green of the Federation of Labor, in a communication addressed to officers and members of International and National Unions, State Federations of Labor and City Central bodies affiliated with the A. F. of L., tells of the desire of the Red Cross to enroll 5,000,000 members this year. He says:

"We know that in the past year the Red Cross has met its greatest test in peace time relief work in the Mississippi valley. For months we were thrilled by the speed, precision and competency with which it performed the tasks of rescue and relief. We were gratified that the workers of the Nation aided so generously in providing the Red Cross with the relief funds it required."

"The American Federation of Labor has confidence in the American National Red Cross. It is in sympathy with the national and international service of this great democratic organization. It has supported it gladly in the past. It will continue to express its faith as need requires. I urge every worker who can possibly do so to join the Red Cross during the annual roll call."

SNAIL NO DELICACY IN OLD STONE AGE
Beloit Scientists Make New Discoveries in Africa.

Beloit, Wis.—The nice people of Mechtia, Africa, in the days before history began, were shamefully backward about their diet. They had snails for breakfast, snails for lunch, snails for dinner. But when it came to the matter of personal appearance the women, at least, were not so slow. They used rouge and powder in plentiful quantities—and presumably for the same general purpose of charm that prompts the charmers of Chicago to use them in 1927.

Such are the deductions of Alonzo W. Pond of the Logan museum staff of Beloit college, Beloit, Wis., from discoveries made by himself and others on the recent Logan museum expedition to Africa.

Ground Ochre for Rouge.
"The art of enhancing human beauty by the use of color seems to be as old as man," he said. "The deposit of Mechtia yielded primitive rouge or face powder in the form of red and yellow ochre. Flat stones were found on which the colored earth had been crushed to powder."

"The excavations gave us no direct evidence that the fair ones of African times painted their faces red or yellow, but almost every modern woman uses the material so frequently that its mere presence in archeological deposits causes the investigator to assume that the people either painted their faces or tattooed them with these brilliant colors."

Regarding the diet, Mr. Pond said: "They ate snails—big snails, little snails, medium-sized snails, long snails, short snails, broad snails, narrow snails. They must have eaten snails for breakfast, snails for lunch, snails for dinner. Probably they had snail soup, snail hors d'oeuvres, snail for the fish course, even snails for dessert."

"But just when one becomes convinced," he added, "that snails were their sole food, a pick uncovers the leg bone of a huge ox or the jawbone of some ruminant. Bone marrow must have been a delicacy, for all the bones were broken so that it could easily be extracted."

Old Stone-Age Folk.
Mechtia el Arbi, said Mr. Pond, is a great mound of small shells, ashes, broken bones and hearthstones, 150 yards long and 100 yards wide, located on a high plateau about thirty miles west of Constantine, Algeria. There the Logan museum conducted excavations last winter, which indicated, in Professor Pond's opinion, that the mound was the camp site of a paleolithic people, probably of the Aurignacian race, which also lived in Europe some 30,000 or 35,000 years ago.

The material collected consisted of worked flint and bone implements and animal remains left from feasts.

"Yes, you can," was the answer. "Go on!"

So he started out, saying, "Dar's one. Dar's one. Dar's one."

After he had gone around the lot he reported, "Boss, I figures it will take a post for every hole around that lot."

"What did you do?" said another show girl.

"Split the difference and told him seventeen."

"The Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America is heartily in sympathy with the national and international work of this great organization and speaks the generous cooperation of the business men of the Nation," continues President Pierson.

"You will, I am confident, rally to this call and lend every possible support to the Red Cross in its annual membership campaign which is to be conducted throughout the country in the period between November 11 and 24."

President William Green of the Federation of Labor, in a communication addressed to officers and members of International and National Unions, State Federations of Labor and City Central bodies affiliated with the A. F. of L., tells of the desire of the Red Cross to enroll 5,000,000 members this year. He says:

"We know that in the past year the Red Cross has met its greatest test in peace time relief work in the Mississippi valley. For months we were thrilled by the speed, precision and competency with which it performed the tasks of rescue and relief. We were gratified that the workers of the Nation aided so generously in providing the Red Cross with the relief funds it required."

"The American Federation of Labor has confidence in the American National Red Cross. It is in sympathy with the national and international service of this great democratic organization. It has supported it gladly in the past. It will continue to express its faith as need requires. I urge every worker who can possibly do so to join the Red Cross during the annual roll call."

SNAIL NO DELICACY IN OLD STONE AGE

Beloit Scientists Make New Discoveries in Africa.

Beloit, Wis.—The nice people of Mechtia, Africa, in the days before history began, were shamefully backward about their diet. They had snails for breakfast, snails for lunch, snails for dinner. But when it came to the matter of personal appearance the women, at least, were not so slow. They used rouge and powder in plentiful quantities—and presumably for the same general purpose of charm that prompts the charmers of Chicago to use them in 1927.

Such are the deductions of Alonzo W. Pond of the Logan museum staff of Beloit college, Beloit, Wis., from discoveries made by himself and others on the recent Logan museum expedition to Africa.

Ground Ocre for Rouge.
"The art of enhancing human beauty by the use of color seems to be as old as man," he said. "The deposit of Mechtia yielded primitive rouge or face powder in the form of red and yellow ocre. Flat stones were found on which the colored earth had been crushed to powder."

"The excavations gave us no direct evidence that the fair ones of Aurignacian times painted their faces red or yellow, but almost every modern woman uses the material so frequently that its mere presence in archeological deposits causes the investigator to assume that the people either painted their faces or tattooed them with these brilliant colors."

Regarding the diet, Mr. Pond said: "They ate snails—big snails, little snails, medium-sized snails, long snails, short snails, broad snails, narrow snails. They must have eaten snails for breakfast, snails for luncheon, snails for dinner. Probably they had snail soup, snail hors d'oeuvres, snail for the fish course, even snails for dessert."

"But just when one becomes convinced," he added, "that snails were their sole food, a pick uncovers the leg bone of a huge ox or the jawbone of some ruminant. Bone marrow must have been a delicacy, for all the bones were broken so that it could easily be extracted."

Old Stone-Age Folk.

Mechta el Arbi, said Mr. Pond, is a great mound of small shells, ashes, broken bones and hearthstones, 150 yards long and 100 yards wide, located on a high plateau about thirty miles west of Constantine, Algeria. There the Logan museum conducted excavations last winter, which indicated, in Professor Pond's opinion, that the mound was the camp site of a paleolithic people, probably of the Aurignacian race, which also lived in Europe some 30,000 or 35,000 years ago.

The material collected consisted of worked flint and bone implements and animal remains left from feasts.

After he had gone around the lot he reported, "Boss, I figures it will take a post for every hole around that lot."

FIREMEN BATTLE FIRE AT K. C. HALL

Flames Shoot up Walls to Apartments Above; Started in Wall

DAMAGE UNESTIMATED

Ceiling Crash on Second Floor Narrowly Misses Fire Fighters

While the mercury rested about six degrees above zero, firemen this morning battled fire and smoke at the K. of C. hall for two hours which did considerable damage to the lodge hall and the apartments on the second floor. A complete estimate of the amount of damage was unknown today but the loss by fire, smoke, and water will amount to over $1,500. The building is owned by the Knights of Columbus and valued at $10,000.

The fire broke out shortly before 8:30 a. m. It started in the basement ceiling and wall near furnace pipes and swept up the wall to the apartments above. Smoke gushing from the burning building gave the warning.

Furniture and contents of the apartments on the second floor were carried out and piled high on the front street sidewalk. Parts of the ceiling on the second floor crashed in nearly striking firemen. Water dripped through the ceiling down on to the lodge room and equipment, causing considerable damage to the hardwood floor and furniture. The majority of damage is covered by insurance.

A fire broke out in the K. C. hall at the same place five years ago causing damage of $7,500.

Charles Roberts, employee of the Water and Light department injured his back when he slipped down the stairs after the fire. He had taken out a meter and slipped on the icy stairs. He was taken to the hospital where X-ray examination was made and then placed under care.

Lodges occupying the ground floor and who have probably sustained smoke, fire or water damage include the Knights of Columbus, Moose who recently moved in, Ladies Auxiliary Foresters, United Order of Americans, and Samaritans.

The two families, tenants on the second floor, are Wallace Westbrook in a three room suite and I. Gustafson, proprietor of the Brainerd Machine Works who occupied four rooms.

RETURN FROM INSPECTIONS

Conclusion Reached That This Part of State is in a Prosperous Position

The Northern Pacific special, carrying Howard Elliott, New York, chairman of the board of directors, C. E. Perkins, a director, and other officials, returned to St. Paul having been in Brainerd Tuesday evening. From Brainerd the train followed the M. & I. Ry. Co. route, stopping at Bemidji to inspect the M. & I. repair shops and at International Falls to inspect the very modern and large pulp and paper mill. This mill operates 24 hours a day and is still using the river wood.

From International Falls to Winnipeg, the train was routed over the line of the Canadian National Railways. The officials then inspected the terminal property of the Northern Pacific at Winnipeg. A long stop was made at East Grand Forks, Minn., to visit a beet sugar factory, and short stops were made at various stations.

The road bed was found in excellent condition. Grain shipments which have been large this fall have let up, both in Canada and in the United States although the Canadian line has just borrowed several thousand N. P. grain cars to help move its crop. There has been an increase in population around the route. Potatoes are abundant and are selling at low prices. The sugar factory at East Grand Forks operates only 90 days each year and is now working 24 hours a day. It is a huge plant and immaculately clean. A great deal of machinery is needed but the work of making sugar being a continuous process, very little labor is required. This is a new institution and Minnesota is fortunate in having it. Beets are raised by farmers who contract from an acreage. The crop must be raised on new ground each year but it has been found that soil on which beets have been raised become fertilized by that usage and the following year yields a bigger grain crop that would result from using commercial fertilizers. This shows the value of such an industry.

Judging by the numerous interviews held along the line of travel, it must be concluded that this part of the state is in a prosperous period.

E. C. BAUMANN CASTS HIS HAT IN THE RING

Reputed Brainerd Man Aspires to Farmer-Labor Nomination in 1928

STATES HIS PLATFORM

Robert Towers, Brainerd, Reported as His Campaign Manager

The Minneapolis Journal gives space to the announcement of E. C. Baumann of Brainerd as a candidate for governor. The Brainerd city directory and telephone, shop records, show no name of Baumann. Robert Towers is a helper residing at 1312 Maple street.

The Journal's article follows: E. C. Baumann of Brainerd announced himself today as a candidate for the farmer-labor nomination for governor, and a battle for control of the party was forecast in a statement by Robert Towers, his campaign manager. Baumann will not ask the endorsement of the Farmer-Labor Association, he says, but will fight the "dictation of political bosses" in the party and submit his case to the voters at the primary.

Baumann was one of the signers of the "round robin" letter last year, in which a number of farmer-laborites deserted the party ticket and declared for the democratic state candidates.

Convention Early in 1928

The Farmer Labor Association is to have a convention early in the coming year to endorse a set of candidates for state nominations.

"I feel that I am qualified to fight for the farmer and laborer as governor of the state of Minnesota," says a statement by Mr. Baumann. "I know your conditions, as they are my conditions. I have worked in the shops and factories on less than living wages. I have raised crops and sold them in the fall for less than the cost of production. I have been fired from the shop by the bosses of industry because I have fought on the side of labor. I have been called crooked because I could not pay my bills. I have been called a traitor because I did not believe in fighting for our masters' pocket book."

For Brotherhood, Not War

The statement declares for the "universal brotherhood of man," against war, for public ownership of all the "big" things used, and for "a share of 50 per cent on business profits" to make the greedy rich support all of the men, women, and children that have been put in destitute circumstances by the money grabbers.

Mr. Baumann also condemns the state child welfare bureau for taking children from homes in some cases and sending them to institutions. He is for repeal of the garnishment law and repeal of the laws under which liens may be enforced against farm crops for debts. He favors a state bank guaranty law and the McNary-Haugen bill, and says that as governor he would use the national guard "to protect the strikers from the hired gunmen and strike-breakers of their masters." He is for a state printing plant and a state cement plant.

American Surety Co. Today Pays Claim of Bank for $36,000

Suspected trails of the four bandits who robbed the First National bank of Tronton Wednesday and escaped in a waiting car with $36,000 today lead officers into the woods to search out every possible hiding place in this vicinity where the bandits might be lying under cover.

County sheriff forces, state detectives, Bankers Association representatives, and officers today continued their search for the bandits in these parts while police departments in a dozen cities in the state cooperated in an endeavor to bring the yeggmens to justice.

Every possible clue was traced down but as yet authorities were unable to give any definite information that would lead to the arrest of the guilty party.

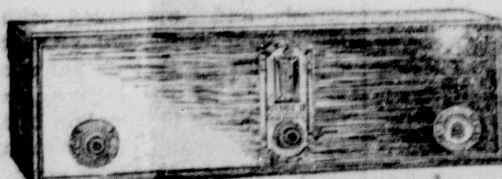

Garagemen in this city and range towns were questioned as to repairs to tourist cars in an effort to establish the identity of the men through the car they were driving.

N. J. Nyhus, assistant cashier of the bank stated to the Dispatch this afternoon that he claim was paid by the American Surety Co. today to the amount of $36,000.

Checks of employees of the Mahanomen mine were paid by the bank on Thursday and checks of employees of the Inland Steel Co. were paid today. The money for the payroll was sent in by train.

The statement declares for the "universal brotherhood of man," against war, for public ownership of all "things that are used," and for "the abolition of 50 per cent on business profits" to make the greedy rich support all of the men, women and children that have been put in destitute circumstances by the money grabbers.

Mr. Baumann also condemns the state child welfare bureau for taking children from homes in some cases and sending them to institutions. He is for repeal of the law against farm crops for debts. He favors a state bank guaranty law and the McNary-Haugen bill, and says that as governor he would use the national guard "to protect the strikers from the hired gunmen and strike-breakers of their masters." He is for a state printing plant and a state cement plant.

BOYS ENJOY CAMP PERIOD

Thirty Seven Scouts Take Part in Activities at Clearwater Three Days

Near zero weather did not phase 37 boy scouts last night who slept in cabins with canvas tops and sides last night at the boy scout camp at Lake Clearwater. As a matter of fact the boys didn't mind it at all for they had declared that they would stick out the three day camp and enjoy it.

The boys enjoyed the camp very much. They built camp fires and last night took part in a night hike. B. Perry Newton, scout executive, was in charge of the camp.

STATE FORESTRY DEPARTMENT PLANS

Obtain Lease of Three Lots on N. P. Right of Way in West Brainerd

GROUNDS TO BE IMPROVED

Small Nursery Plot to be Maintained, Log Ranger Cabin May be Built

The State Forestry department has obtained a lease of some three lots on the Northern Pacific right-of-way at the west end of the Mississippi river bridge in West Brainerd, on which formerly stood the water tower and boiler house for the Northern Pacific hospital.

The old brick boiler house has been purchased of the Northern Pacific Beneficial Association and is being fitted up for use as a warehouse.

Plans are being made to level and landscape the grounds in the early spring. A small nursery plot will be maintained to demonstrate the growth of seedlings of various native trees and it is hoped that a typical log ranger cabin can be built during the coming summer.

WOODS SEARCHED FOR FOUR YEGGMEN

County Sheriff Forces, Detectives Follow up Every Possible Clue

American Surety Co. Today Pays Claim of Bank for $36,000

Suspected trails of the four bandits who robbed the First National bank of Ironton Wednesday and escaped in a waiting car with $36,000 today lead officers into the woods to search out every possible hiding place in this vicinity where the bandits might be lying undercover.

County sheriff forces, state detectives, Bankers Association representatives, and officers today continued their search for the bandits in these parts while police departments in a dozen cities in the state cooperated in an endeavor to bring the yeggmens to justice.

Every possible clue was traced down but as yet authorities were unable to give any definite information that would lead to the arrest of the guilty party.

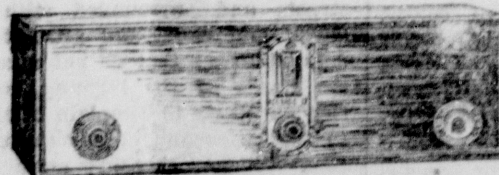

Garagemen in this city and range towns were questioned as to repairs to tourist cars in an effort to establish the identity of the men through the car they were driving.

N. J. Nyhus, assistant cashier of the bank stated to the Dispatch this afternoon that he claim was paid by the American Surety Co. today to the amount of $36,000.

Checks of employees of the Mahanomen mine were paid by the bank on Thursday and checks of employees of the Inland Steel Co. were paid today. The money for the payroll was sent in by train.

SYNOPSIS

Hurricane Haley, skipper of the sailing schooner "Sea Sprite," is searching Frisco for something to make him forget the horrors of his recent trip. His friends at "The Ship" tell him to try "The River-side," where Frisco Polly is dancing, and Hurricane is very interested in the girl. She is a strange creature, typical of the Frisco docklands and a wonderful dancer. Hurricane arranges with Crawley to meet her, but he is interrupted by Brady, his mate, who he left drunk aboard the schooner. The mate is very insolent, but Hurricane, with his mind full of Polly, fails to notice it.

"Come on, Elbow, trot the jame out," begged Brady.

"Say you, who asked you to horn in here, that girl's mine an' I ain't looking for no opposition. Get me?" Hurricane was mad, and looking for trouble.

"Say, you don't own the girl," expostulated the mate. "Tell you what I'll do. I'll match you for her."

"Like hell you will," roared Hurricane, but the crowd who had gathered around at the prospect of a fight shouted its approval of the scheme.

"All right then," he said. The coins were spun, but Hurricane paid little attention to his own. He remembered one night, at a little sailing station in Alaska when his mate had matched with the trader at the post there, and

He turned to the voice. "Why, hello," Hurricane was surprised, he had expected that Crawley would charge him heavily for the pleasure of meeting Polly, and here she was talking to him.

"Won't you have a drink?" it was all that he could think of saying. The thoughts and desires of those long winter nights were blinded momentarily by the nearness of the realization of them all. "Thanks, but I rarely touch it," smiled Polly, "you drink though, and have a good time. Just get back from a long trip?"

"Two years in the Aleutians, and back with a full cargo. I've had a hell of a time for two years, and I'm back in Frisco to make up for it."

Polly had met his kind before and had managed to give them nothing, and take from them all they had to give. Not every time, for Polly was entirely a creature of impulse—and gloriously immoral, if immorality can be charged to one like her.

And in truth Polly found a different man in Hurricane. As a rule men leave their mark on women that they meet. Not so with Polly, she was a being that breathed eternal youth and fire, she left her mark on men. Though of doubtful antecedents, Polly was of finer material than the animals that preyed.

She was accustomed to the tipsy, thick-lipped brutes that saw in her the finale to an evening's debauch; to the little yellow men, who while more than that he remembered the uncanny way in which the coin had coincided with the one of the trader. Later he had been shown the trick.

"Who's going to take me? You?"

As he thought, Brady attempted to lay his coin down after Hurricane, but this time his trick did not avail him, for as the coin hit the table and his hand flicked the coin so that it fell the correct way, Hurricane's fist struck him squarely beneath the jaw.

"You damned rat," he growled. "Get back to the ship, and if I ever have another run-in with you, you can look for another job, you run-swilling, cheating, apology for a sailor."

"Come on, fellows, let's have one drink on the house, and no more fighting," bellowed Crawley. Going over to Haley he whispered, "She'll be out in a minute, an' I'll give you the knock-down."

"Okay," nodded Hurricane. Then Polly emerged, this was her rest between shows, and though she seldom drank herself, it was her duty to mingle with the crowd and persuade them to buy all that she could. As was her custom, she looked towards Crawley for her cue. He was back at his bar now, and knowing that this was a better method than an introduction, he nodded towards Hurricane who sat alone, waiting.

Without formality, Polly tripped over to Hurricane's table lightly, and sat beside him. Hurricane was still watching the door on the stage through which Polly had vanished. It was her policy that told him she was there.

"Well, Big Boy, who are you waiting for?" Polly's voice could be very sweet when she wanted it to, and she was intrigued by this big man who had not taken his eyes off her while she was dancing. This was nothing unusual, but the light that she saw in the eyes of other men somehow did not seem to lie in his.

As for Hurricane, he had already decided that this big-eyed child was all that he had ever dreamed about. Much of his desire and satisfaction had vanished, leaving only wonder. Wonder how anyone so elfish and whimsical as this little dancer could exist in the fetid gardens of slumland. It was hard to associate her with this life. Hurricane had no standard of morals. Things were to him decent, or they were not, and Polly was utterly decent, and intensely desirable. Although temporarily blinded by the hell of the last two years, his was a disposition that was essentially easy-going. Human kindness counting before tradition and logic. So it was easy to blind himself to the life that Polly would have to live to be a star in this sort of institution, and a short step from there to admitting that she was just the sort of thing that he had been dreaming about.

pered of silks and rare stones as they leered with longing eyes. To the ugly blacks who tried to paw her with their big greasy hands, beasts all of them, who would outwit her, if she did not outwit them.

But Polly seemed to find a different self in the presence of this big, healthy, salt-browed man, with his natural smile, and slow drawing voice. It reminded her of the seas he came from, less monotonous perhaps, but just as sincere and clean.

As for Hurricane he had forgotten all his dreams of debauchery in the company of a sort of human that he did not know existed. Sailors are impressionable, and Hurricane was already infatuated with the little dancer. He just wanted her company, wanted to talk to her about herself, and him. Nor did he hint at anything further.

"Born around here?" he asked. "Sure thing, just around the corner from here. Never been out of Frisco in my life. It must be wonderful to be a sailor. You don't have to do anything. You don't have to dance for a lot of brutes."

Somehow it seemed natural for Polly to confide in the husky sailor. "What, ain't you never been out of Frisco?" he marveled.

"No. How could I? Kids around here don't have time to do much, running around sightseeing if they want to eat," her smile was intoxicating the sailor.

"How would you like to take a trip sometime, an' see all the places that you've heard about?" he asked.

"Who's going to take me, you?" she asked, flippantly. Her little dancing skirt came far short of her knees, nor was she adverse to having him notice them.

"Well, you don't want me on your crew, then," her red lips devoid of paint, pouted a little as if surprised.

"Guess I'd take you anywhere," and Hurricane wondered why he felt so uncomfortable and so eager to make an impression.

"It's hot in here, ain't it?" he asked. "I'm cool enough," she answered, with another flirt of silk clad limbs.

"How long have you been doing this? Do you mind telling me?" he inquired. "Why should I? I've been dancing since I was a kid, though I ain't been here long. I guess you don't like this place much, but you should have seen some of the other places that I've been in; this is paradise to them. I don't think about it if I can help it." Nor was she smiling now.

"It's too bad that a kid like you has to do this. Did you ever try anything else?" By now Hurricane was sitting on the same side of the table as Polly.

Community Building

Proper Color Scheme Important to House

A large house on a small plot is best painted in unobtrusive colors, that is to say, colors that blend readily with immediate surroundings. Grayed blues or grayed greens show off such a house to good advantage. Neighboring houses should also be kept in mind in deciding upon a color scheme. The proper consideration of them may sometimes mean sacrificing a good color scheme already chosen, but it will pay in the end. It is far better to discard a certain harmonious combination than to have it killed by others which are not in keeping with it.

An example may be cited, wherein a house on the left has been treated a light salmon color, while a house on the right has been accorded a green treatment. A harmony of sequence could be very nicely established in this case by treating the house in the center with a colonial yellow.

After an examination of any exterior color problem it will be readily seen that a little thought given in the selection of proper colors will do much toward establishing a pleasing, harmonious and decorative result, that will be in keeping with both the house and its surroundings.

Benefit in Proper Planning of Village

City planning as practiced in metropolitan centers has its counterpart in the development of villages that serve as social and trade centers for farming communities. The automobile affords the farmer a wider range of choice in selecting his recreation and in selling his products and buying supplies. Some of the elements of good physical make-up of towns and villages, according to Wayne C. Nason, of the division of farm population and rural life of the Department of Agriculture, are convenient and pleasing exits and entrances, broad tree-lined streets, a common or village green as a civic center, park and playground space, sanitation, good architecture in private dwellings, as well as in public buildings, which should be conveniently located, and all set back from the streets and surrounded with ample lawns and clean and attractive borders. Villages that do not minister to the needs of the farming communities are likely to complain of the drift to the cities and of ruinous competition. Villages that are attractive, as well as serviceable, also profit from the ever-increasing army of summer tourists.

Briefly Told

Roof and walls, be they cottage or mansion, do not make home; rather it is the atmosphere of natural love, the intimacies of thought, the joys and sorrows endured together, and the never failing sympathy—that bond inviolable yet stronger than death.

Jackrabbits' Diet

A jackrabbit is nothing if not broad-minded concerning his diet. He prizes a nice, green wheat field, but six or seven of his kind will consume as much forage daily as one sheep. Prairie dogs, friend and confidante of the jackrabbit, will mow down young wheat as definitely as a scythe.

An Amazing Success

Feen-a-mint

The Cheering LAXATIVE

Chew It Like Chewing Gum

A pleasure to use. Very efficient.

Children love it. No taste but that of sweet mint. The most popular laxative because it's a "satisfier."

15c and 25c.

Babies Love It

For all stomach and intestinal troubles and disturbances due to teething, there is nothing better than a safe Infants' and Children's Laxative.

Mrs. Winslow's Syrup
